Spotlight: Diabetic Pugs

Living with a diabetic dog is not as difficult as it may seem. Once their insulin amount is regulated, a diabetic dog only requires a small amount of extra care. Learning how to administer the shot is the scary part but, once you have learned the proper way to give the injections you will be surprised at how easy it really is. Another major requirement of a diabetic dog is scheduling the shots. The shots must be given twelve hours apart. This keeps your dog from having other complications. They also require access to plenty of fresh water. A support system is a must. Our volunteers at Colorado Pug Rescue are always here for support if you need us. Please consider adopting a diabetic Pug.

Hercules and Yoda!

Meet Yoda! He is diabetic and blind. His BFF is Hercules (on the left). He also happens to be blind. Despite their medical and physical setbacks, you couldn't find a sweeter or happier pair!!

CPR currently has two diabetic pugs in foster care and two additional pugs on our waiting list to get into foster care.

Foster Pugs of the Month Sammy & Lily!

Hi There! I'm Sammy and this is my gal pal, Lily. We are seasoned fosters with the Colorado Pug Rescue. On one hand we've had the great fortune of finding three forever homes and on the other hand we've had the sad misfortune of being returned to CPR twice. CPR thinks the world of us. We're housebroken, kennel trained, champion couch potatoes and have a huge capacity to love. We'd love to find a fourth and final forever home! Please read more about us and our CPR pug friends here. Thanks for checking us out!

Love, Sammy & Lily

Volunteers of the Month! Joan and Leo Melgosa

Congratulations to Joan and Leo - our volunteers of the month!

Joan and Leo are long time volunteers with Colorado Pug Rescue and have taken on some of our toughest foster pugs. They have been fostering Buddy for several years. Buddy is six years old now and was living in a barn before coming to us, and the only thing he had to survive on was his own vomit. Being forced to eat this caused damage to his esophagus from the acid and he has trouble keeping food down. He has to be fed a liquid diet anywhere from four times a day (on good days) to eight times a day (on not so good days). Joan and Leo have been caring for Buddy in this manner the entire time they have fostered him. Buddy has numerous other medical issues, and just one of his three daily medicines costs $140 a month. But Buddy has Joan and Leo as angels in his life now, and with proper medical care he has beat the odds and has a loving life. Thanks Joan and Leo, from all of us at Colorado Pug Rescue, and especially Buddy!
